Elegant Wedding Decorations For Tables

The first step in choosing wedding decorations for tables is to think about flowers. You are probably going to want large flower displays in certain places around the room, such as behind the bride and grooms table, at the entrance to the room and at certain places along the side walls.

So you should pick flowers that will match those on the bigger displays for you table decorations. Colours may match the theme of the wedding, the dresses of the bride and her attendants, the brides bouquet, etc.

A flower centrepiece will be equal to a half-decorated table already. And it doesnt require much work.

When youre done with the flower arrangements, you can proceed to the candles. You have to take into account the place and the time of the meal. You wont need candles if youll have your meal outdoors and during daytime. Candles are a definite plus if the meal will be held indoors.

If your reception will be formal, then you can use white candles or tall candlesticks. That fits right in with the traditional wedding.

For a more informal approach, you might want to consider floating candles along with flowers or petals in coloured water. You can dye the water using crepe paper or coloured tissue paper. Their dyes will easily run into the water.

You will probably want the wedding favours on the table too. These can take any form depending on the theme of your wedding. If you present them in a small box with ribbons, then having one beside each plate will make a big difference to how your tables look.

All your tables need are flowers, candles, party favours, and some coloured linen or paper napkins. A clean, simple table design with a few splashes of colour can look more elegant than anything that is over decorated.

If you have big tables or want more colour in the decorations, you can display some fresh fruit. Fruit comes in so many colours that you are sure to be able to find a combination that will look good and taste great too!

You can also have balloons or streamers dangling from the ceiling, or colourful ribbons on the tables. But be careful not to have too many different colours in your design, because that just ends up looking cheap and childish. A combination of three colours including white and/or white will do.

The table cloths, napkins, and the like will be taken care of by the caterers or wedding venue. The traditional white cloths and plates will be available, plus some others that you might also like. Knowing what your options are should be one of the first things to do as you plan your wedding party. It is best to do that before making up your mind about other wedding decorations for tables.
