

Published based on Survive & Thrive In London - Moving2London

Survive & Thrive In London - Moving2London

London is one of the greatest cosmopolitan cities and the 4th largest economy of the world. If something is happening in life, chances are it is happening in London. Everybody in London seems to be living high off the hog yet liberality and tolerance are a basic part of their life. This metropolis warmly welcomes people from around the world and offers them incredible new lives and amazing opportunities if they know how to take advantage of it.

The dream of living in London with its cosmopolitan lifestyle, strong economy, multicultural society and hot opportunities makes it an ideal place to live in.

When Nick and I moved to London from Australia a few years ago, we had the same questions on our minds. We were on a sticky wicket at the start.

We totally loved the experience of coming to London but in the beginning we did a lot of things wrong. Social networking wasn't as big then. Moving companies were few and far between, and we did a lot of things on our own. We ultimately learnt things the hard way. The move was much more stressful than it needed to be because there was no one to guide us... no one to answer our questions.

Since then we have helped hundreds of people move to London. We even had some friends in Australia who wore belt and braces and were about to give up their dream of living in London before we helped them.

We've pointed many foreigners in the right direction to find jobs, secure accommodations, gave them advice about bank accounts and put them in touch with others that can help make moving to and staying in London easier. We have been there with advice, comments and tips.

Because of our personal experience of learning...

You can also find this article published on Survive & Thrive In London - Moving2London, and on the tag pages cosmopolitan lifestyle, dream, Everybody, life, staying in london, sticky wicket.